Skin, Bones, Hearts & Private Parts Publishes New White Paper

The Current Learning Landscape of Nurse Practitioners, Physician Assistants examines preferences and educational needs for the growing sector of healthcare community

Nurse Practitioners (NPs) and Physician Assistants (PAs) are essential members of the healthcare community, and in response to their advocacy for increased professional autonomy, Charles Dillehay, MBA, CAE, Founder and CEO of Skin, Bones, Hearts & Private Parts, and Brian S. McGowan, PhD, FACEhp, current Co-Founder and Chief Learning Officer, ArcheMedX, Inc, a healthcare informatics and e-learning company, have published "The Current Learning Landscape of NPs/PAs." The new white paper seeks to better understand today's educational environment, preferences, and needs of licensed NPs and PAs and examines how to best deliver education for both audiences.

New Speakers, Nine Conferences, Seven Locations in 2024

Our slate of fully accredited CME conferences for 2024 is set, and we're excited to announce that we will be returning to our two most popular city destinations – Orlando and Pensacola – twice next year, doubling your chance to visit the parks or the beach while earning CME! The speaker lineup, meanwhile, will see some returning stars and some new faces, and have passed our two-part test of knowledge base and presentation style. And, we'll offer CME in-person, on-demand, and virtually, so no matter your learning style or your schedule, we have you covered.

November is Diabetes Awareness Month

November is National Diabetes Month, intended to bring attention to diabetes, which affects about 37 million Americans, including adults and youth, and can damage the eyes, kidneys, nerves, and heart. This year, the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases is focusing the month on actions that can help prevent diabetes health problems, such as:

- Manage blood glucose, blood pressure, and cholesterol levels as soon as possible
- Prioritize healthy lifestyle habits
- Reach or maintain a healthy weight
- Take care of mental health
- Work with your healthcare team.
